Year 8 Ypres Trip

Dear Parents and Carers

There is so much going on in the College and that is clear from this week's edition of Optime.

We were pleased to get a call from The Times at the end of last week to ask us why our results are so exceptional. Some schools in rural and coastal areas struggle to get good exam results. On the other hand, we noticed Ilfracombe's brilliant results last year and paid a visit in order to take and apply some of their good ideas.

It is true that we have been asked to do increasingly elaborate things by other authorities, but we have not been diverted from our work. We have not allowed ourselves to be distracted from the fact that the best thing a school can do is provide a great education and great results for its pupils.

Qualifications do open doors and have a significant impact upon what happens when a child leaves school. We have never forgotten that.

Schools can get great results and offer great opportunities for personal development. I hope you see that at Chulmleigh.

Michael Johnson

Mr Johnson, Executive Headteacher

We were pleased to be singled out by The Times this week for our results and the impact we have on all pupils from every background.

Animal clubs and yoga lessons boost deprived pupils' GCSE results

Nicola Woolcock Education Editor

More than 50,000 white working-class children are set to finish secondary school without passing core subjects this year.

Analysis of official figures shows that less than 20 per cent of all white British teenagers from deprived homes will leave school with at least a grade 4 in both English and maths GCSE and, if nothing changes, nearly one million disadvantaged white pupils currently in school will leave without the qualifications.

However, one secondary school in a predominantly white area is using yoga classes, Scottish dancing and a wild animal club — as well as keeping its doors open for nine hours a day — to help pupils flourish.

About 10 per cent of pupils at Catmose College, a rural school near the market town of Oakham in Rutland, are white British and from deprived homes.

Ensuring their success is a personal mission for the principal, Stuart Williams, the son of a cleaner and bus driver who first went abroad as a 21-year-old teacher on a school trip to France.

At the vast majority of schools in England, white working-class British pupils do worse than expected at GCSE level based on their performance at the end of primary school. This measure is called Progress 8. At Catmose, they do better than expected, achieving an equivalent of a tenth of a grade higher in each GCSE subject.

Williams, the head for 17 years, said children on free school meals were a "broad group" with very different experiences among white rural and coastal communities compared with first-generation immigrants. "An awful lot of the way that we approach things here stems from my own experiences," he said. "I'm a product of a white British working-class comprehensive school."

Growing up in Liverpool in the 1980s, his views and aspirations were shaped by friends from middle-class families whose parents took him to the theatre, sports events and to hear the Liverpool Philharmonic Orchestra. His family could not afford school lunches, but his parents were too proud to apply for free meals, which has led him to support auto-enrolment for those who qualify.

Pupils can come into school from 8am and stay until 5pm, free of charge. "There are always senior staff here, we want our school to be welcoming and don't want children to feel there's any barrier to coming in. No areas are out of bounds, they can access any classroom, play the piano in the music practice rooms, use computers if they haven't got access to a good computer at home."

Williams has broadened access to extracurricular activities by setting up a programme of electives on Wednesday afternoons instead of lessons. The art, culture or sports courses last six weeks and include French conversation, astronomy club, horse care, wild animal club, ceramics, Scottish dancing, hiking and yoga. Activities are free or heavily subsidised for those on free meals. "We want every child to have those experiences so they actually look forward to coming into school," Williams said.

Disadvantaged pupils have "assertive mentoring" from a senior member of staff, who is "like a good parent on site". They meet every week throughout GCSE years to oversee revision and talk about career aspirations.

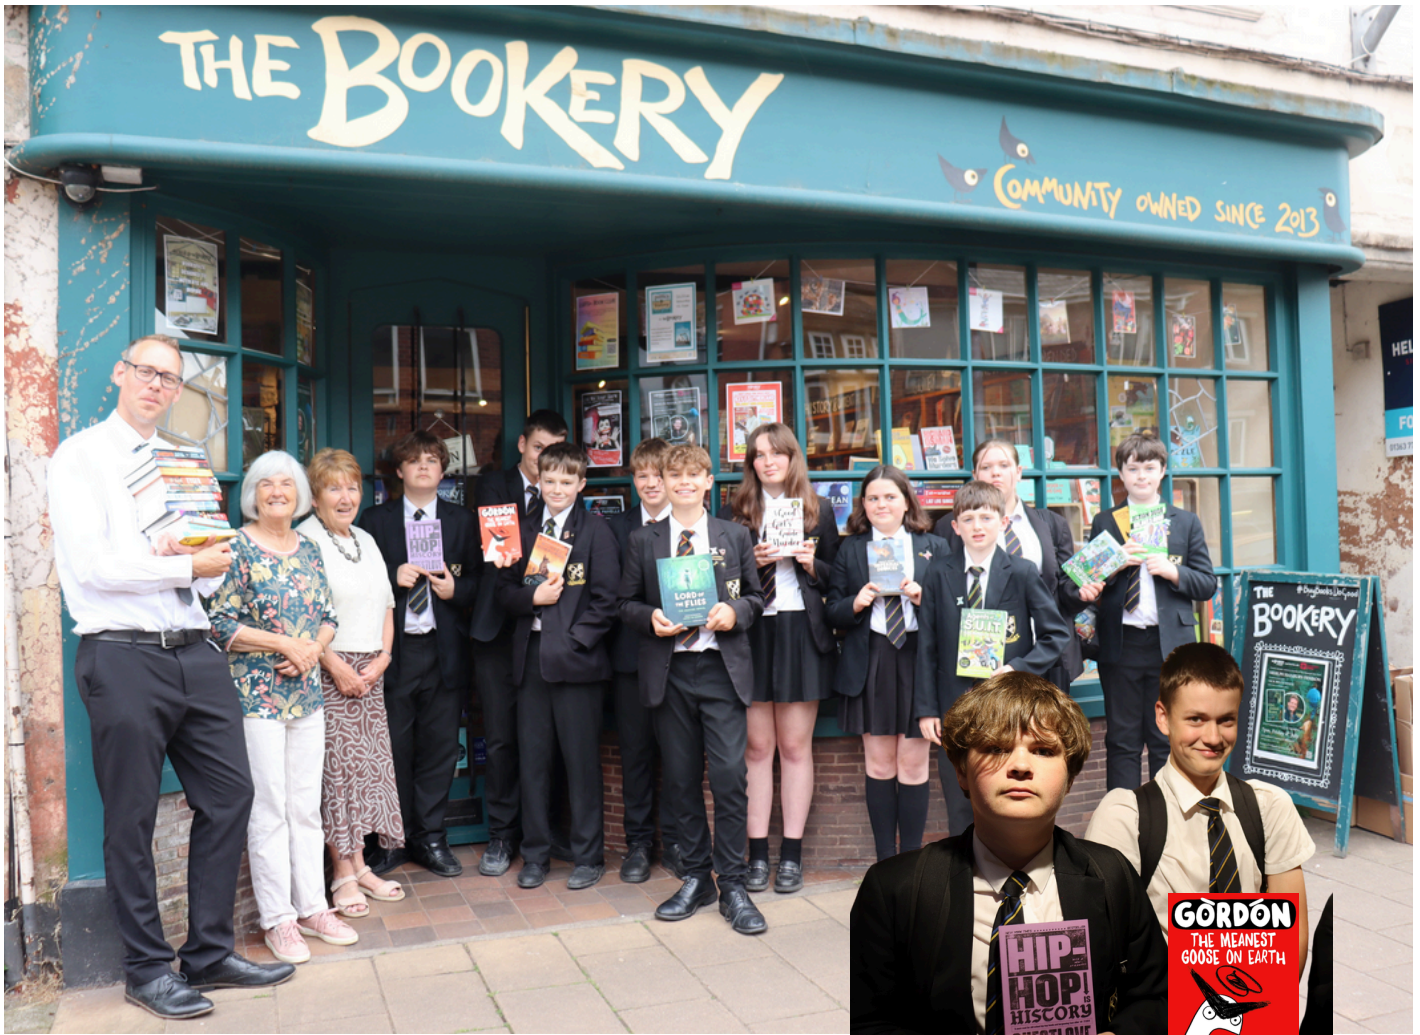

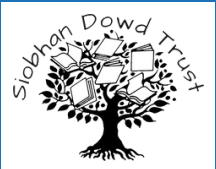

Williams added: "We don't have au-

Catmose College pupils can take part in activities like the wild animal club

thoritarian silence on the corridors. We manage our students in a very similar way that we would our own children, with very high expectations."

Chulmleigh College in Devon has a 99 per cent white British pupil roll, with about 18 per cent from deprived backgrounds. It has a well above average Progress 8 rating and a positive rating for that group equal to achieving 0.17 grades higher than expected across all GCSEs. Michael Johnson, its head, said: "Schools have to do increasingly elaborate things, but we've tried to take that away and focus on making sure children leave with good results." Tactics include silent study and prep time. The school focuses on the curriculum introduced by Michael Gove and nearly all pupils take the English baccalaureate suite of qualifications: English, maths, a science, a language and history or geography. "That's been critical for the achievement of disadvantaged children," Johnson said. "We put a massive emphasis on literacy."

Pupils Visit The Bookery, Crediton

Q: How quickly can ten pupils spend £600 on books? A: Very.

What a joy it was to take a contingent of Creditonite-Chulmleighites down to The Bookery and select £600 worth of books for the library! The money was generously gifted to us from the Siobhan Dowd Trust, and The Bookery selected our school specially to receive that funding. All those new books expand the supply in our library here.

Each of our pupils also received a free, brand new book of their choice. It was just great to see their enthusiasm. They were a credit(on) to the school, and finished the trip with an ice cream.

French Exchange

French Exchange Trip: A Memorable Experience in Mer

During May half-term, 24 of our pupils took part in an unforgettable exchange trip to Mer, in France, spending five nights with their French penfriends.

Unlike a typical school trip, an exchange demands resilience, independence, and a willingness to step outside of one's comfort zone. Staying with a family you have just met and adapting to a new daily routine is not easy – but our pupils embraced the challenge. I am incredibly proud of how well they represented our school and themselves.

One of the highlights of the trip was a day at Futuroscope, a science-themed amusement park where we explored a variety of attractions and enjoyed spending time with the 10 pupils from Collège Notre-Dame Saint Joseph.

The next morning offered a true insight into French school life, as pupils attended Maths and English lessons alongside their penfriends. It was an opportunity to experience the French education system first-hand—beyond textbooks and PowerPoint slides.

That afternoon, we visited the town of Blois, where pupils took part in a treasure hunt through its picturesque streets. Dr McMahon and I were particularly taken by the stunning rose gardens!

Evenings were spent with host families, giving pupils the chance to practise their French, enjoy local cuisine, play games, and have conversations with the families.

With Thursday and Friday being public holidays in France, many pupils had the chance to explore further afield visiting the Château de Chambord, the city of Orléans, and a lucky few even spent a day in Paris.

We returned on Saturday with unforgettable memories, strengthened friendships, and a real sense of cultural enrichment.

A heartfelt thank you to Dr McMahon for her support, and to the families who so warmly welcomed the French pupils during their visit here in March.

Hopefully, these connections will blossom into lifelong friendships!

French Exchange

French Exchange Trip: A Memorable Experience in Mer

Spending a week immersed in French culture not as a tourist but as a member of a French family was an experience like no other. We got to practise our French every day from ordering croissants at the boulangerie to chatting with our host siblings about our favourite music and sport. The trip wasn't just about improving our French, it was about our personal growth. It was about stepping outside our comfort zones, embracing new experiences and gaining a broader perspective on the world. We learnt to navigate a new environment, communicate with people from a different culture and appreciate the diversity of the world.

I think the most beneficial days for us all were the two days we spent alone with the families. We were each embraced as a member of their own and came back with unique experiences to share. During the first full day as a group, we went to the Futuroscope, a new adventure for many of us who had never encountered a place like this. The next day we all participated in a typical French school day, learning each topic as they were and communicating with the pupils. In the afternoon, we visited Blois, a small but beautiful town in which we did a treasure hunt with the French pupils.

This trip was an unforgettable experience and we are so grateful for the opportunity.

Ypres Trip

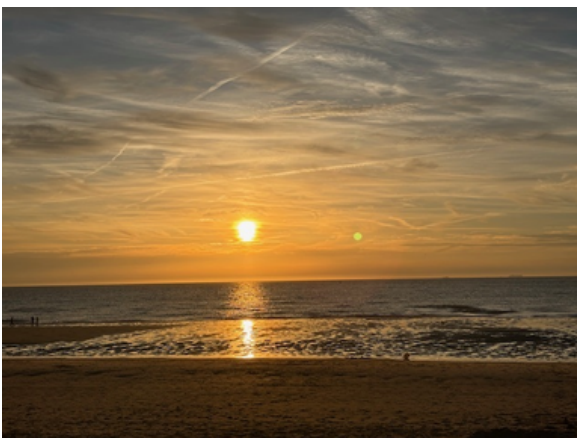

Year 8 Trip to Ypres

On 28 May, 67 Year 8 pupils (including myself) went to Belgium. On the first day we travelled. It took a while to get to the hostel but when we got there half of us went bowling (which was great fun) and the other half checked in to their rooms with a bit of free time to explore Oostende before dinner.

The next day we saw a lot of war memorials for the fallen in battle before going to a chocolate shop where we given a great deal! The next day we went to a theme park for the day. There was so much to do that the day just flew by. On the last day we went to a chocolate factory and made our own chocolate before travelling back home.

Our trip to Belgium was really enjoyable! If you have the chance to go on a school trip, especially to a new country, I would thoroughly recommend it.

Sean Symons, Year 8 pupil

Ypres Trip

Year 8 Trip to Ypres

During the May half term some of Year 8 got the chance to go to Ypres in Belgium. On the first day we got up at 2am and travelled for most of the day. When we arrived at our hostel we went bowling in a local bowling alley. The next day we went to a series of museums and cemeteries outside of Ypres where we got to experience what it was like in the trenches and see some famous cemeteries, such as Tyne Cot cemetery. We also went to In Flanders Field Museum in Ypres, followed by a visit to a chocolate shop! For dinner that night we ate at a local restaurant and then watched the Last Post Ceremony which was very moving.

On day 3 we spent most of the day at Bellewaerde Theme Park which had some scary and wet rides!! On the final day we travelled for a bit and then stopped at another chocolate factory where we made our own chocolate pizzas and spent a fortune on more chocolate! We continued our journey into France and managed to catch the earlier ferry from Calais to Dover.

Although we all had a great time it was nice to be back on English soil!

Dee Friggens, Year 8 pupil

Blue Campaign

Pupils in Years 7 and 8 have spent their lunchtimes painting 12 blue hearts in support of the Blue Campaign, which encourages people to rewild their gardens across Britain. Here is a small selection of the blue hearts the pupils painted.

These blue hearts will go into people's gardens, grass verges, maybe even in school, to remind and encourage people not to cut their lawns too often! Butterflies, bees, insects and birds need our wild flowers and weeds to thrive.

Help us to help them by: not cutting your lawn, leave a space for wild flowers and weeds to grow, and avoid using sprays to kill weeds. Our lawns, hedges and gardens are havens for our insects, which in turn support birds and other animals. If you see a blue heart in someone's garden, you know they care about keeping our wildlife healthy! Find out more about this campaign at: <https://bluecampaignhub.com/>

Well done to Holly, Archie, Maisie, Lexi, Lilly, Polly, Sophie, Amelia, Rosie and Jayden for their help. Thank you!

Ms Wilson, Teacher of Art & DT

Gliding Pilot Wings

Congratulations to Freddie Purkiss, Year 11, who made his first solo flight last Sunday and was awarded his wings via Dartmoor Gliding Society.

'I am a corporal in Royal Air Force cadets, but only had one opportunity to go flying so I started to attend Dartmoor Gliding Society where I have been taking lessons. I had my first solo flight on Sunday and was awarded my wings. It was amazing. I hope to go into the forces and use my pilot skills I have gained.'

Book of the Week: Happy Head by Josh Silver

A radical retreat designed to fix the epidemic of teenage unhappiness turns sinister in Josh Silver's dark and electrifying YA debut.

We are in an epidemic. An epidemic of unhappiness.

Friends, here is the good news: Happy Head has the answer.

When Seb is offered a place on a radical retreat designed to solve the national crisis of teenage unhappiness, he is determined to change how people see him and make his parents proud. But as he finds himself drawn to the enigmatic Finn, Seb starts to question the true nature of the challenges they must undergo. The deeper into the programme the boys get, the more disturbing the assessments become, until it's clear there may be no escape.
